A Grand Affair

Anna Griffin Releases Simply Stunning Imprintables
National Stationery Show 2007

Marie Antoinette inspired printable invitations are the latest creation by invitation designer, Anna Griffin and will debut at the National Stationery Show May 20th to 23rd in New York City. A simply beautiful composition of six, eloquent styles of special occasion invitations are emblazoned with 18th Century engravings suitable for weddings and other special occasions. Continuing on her path of trend setting design, Griffin launches two, new beautiful shades of dusty lavender and muted yellow as part of the collections pastel palette also featuring pale pink, mint green and light blue. "Using color on your wedding invitation is all the rage," says Griffin "it's up to the minute in paper fashion."

Each line expresses its' individuality with decorative motifs and elaborate antique etched accents, an exceptional addition to Griffin's existing 2007 Collections. Unique to the group, is an oversized, intricate, cartouche design that takes its queue from the Baroque art housed at the Palace of Versailles. The interesting detail of this invitation will lead the receiver to believe that the affair ahead is one of grandeur and importance. Additional stylish elements such as, calligraphy borders, luxurious gold scroll corners and floral etchings delicately resting atop rectangles of soft colors complete this exquisite group.

Each of the six styles is available in a variety of colors intended to mix beautifully with any affair. Whether a wedding, landmark birthday, or special announcement, the Anna Griffin 2007 Inprintable Collection offers something appropriate for all. Available in boxes of 10 cards and envelopes with a suggested retail of $13 to $22 per box. Imprinting costs are additional at fine paper and stationery retailers.
